

Realizing Value in Diabetes Prevention Programs (DPP) Symposium

Emory University, Atlanta
November 5, 2018

FACT SHEET

Realizing DPP 2018 SYMPOSIUM

Finding Shared Value in Diabetes Prevention Programs

Symposium Objective

This one-day symposium is a landmark event to assemble payers, suppliers, and facilitators of diabetes prevention programs across the United States to discuss experiences in scaling DPP access. The overarching theme is to “find shared value” through cross-cutting discussion sessions with those organizations implementing NDPP and MDPP.

The agenda for this meeting is to provide neutral ground for openly discussing DPP implementation challenges, successes, and failures while identifying gaps in knowledge that are impeding access progress. Our hope is to establish a platform for the continued sharing of knowledge.

Why Attend This Symposium

- Receive opportunities for face-to-face dialogue with fellow payers, suppliers, and facilitators that have implemented diabetes prevention programs
- Create and expand strategies for facing DPP implementation challenges successfully
- Develop new possibilities for referrals, enrollment, onboarding and participation
- Identify knowledge gaps that are impeding program delivery modalities
- Answers and solutions to scaling a quality lifestyle coach workforce
- Discover best practices for program quality control and achieving positive outcomes
- Talk to experts and researchers about payments
